OECD COMPETITION WORKSHOP FOR JUDGES

This Workshop will provide judges with an opportunity to explore in greater depth the economic principles underlying competition cases, the methods used by economists, and their application in cases before the courts. The workshop will focus in particular on the economics of abuse of dominance cases and mergers.

The goal of the Workshop is to make judges more familiar with economic concepts, to be more confident when presented with economic based arguments, and to communicate more effectively with economic court experts and economic expert witnesses.

The panel of speakers will include judges to address the issue of economic evidence from a judicial perspective as well as economists with experience in competition authorities and academia and with ample familiarity with presenting economic evidence to courts.

The Workshop is targeted at judges from the Asia Pacific Region and will take place in Busan (South Korea) from 13-15 October 2015.
